A COMPOSITE LUMBER MANUFACTURER

Water Penetration 3 min. Soak

WPC based composite products have LOW water-resistance due to an encapsulation method. And with high wood content and large wood particle sizes within the product, when WPC encapsulated products are cut, the wood particles are exposed to climate conditions and will absorb water if submerged or exposed to rain for an extended period of time.

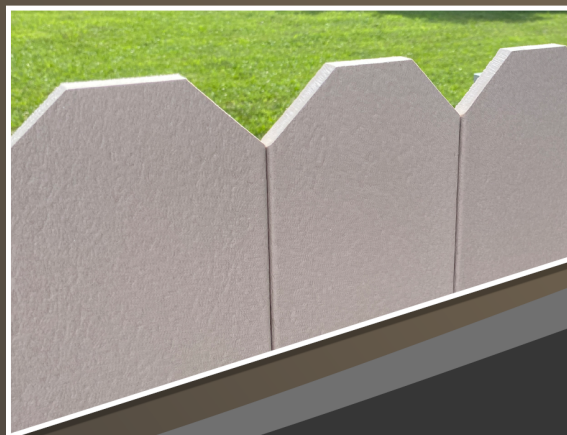

Mold & Mildew is a common issue within WPC

Batech composite products are composed of a unique blend of high-quality polymers and natural fibers, which provides excellent water-resistance and weathering properties.

The composite products are solid, with the same material throughout the entire product; there is no encapsulating or surface coating.

Batech's solid composite products are easy to cut and customize, similar to traditional wood lumber.

The solid structure provides high impact resistance to rock chips and weed eaters. The composite fences and posts have a strong structure and are resistant to extreme high winds or shear-off.
